Dear ENERGY STAR® for Windows, Doors, and, Skylights manufacturing partner,

EPA reminds all partners in the ENERGY STAR windows, doors, and skylights program that as a condition of your ENERGY STAR Partnership Agreement, you are required to certify and verify your products. Partners were reminded of this requirement in January 2013. However, to date, there are still a significant number of partners who have not yet enrolled in a verification program.

At this time, the National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC) is the only certification body that offers an Independent Verification Program (IVP) that meets EPA's requirements for verification testing of windows, doors, and skylights. For information on how to enroll and identify ENERGY STAR product lines, visit http://www.nfrc.org/IVP/default.aspx.

EPA is setting a due date of June 1, 2013 for manufacturers to enroll in an IVP and identify their ENERGY STAR product lines. Failure to take these required steps by the specified date may result in termination of your partnership with the ENERGY STAR program.

Questions regarding the NFRC IVP can be sent to IVP@nfrc.org.

Thank you for your continued support of ENERGY STAR.
